Success Story

George came to our center as a homeless father and a Vietnam veteran who is also disabled. He sought our center's services and volunteered to help around the center because there was no sober place for him to hang out after meetings. He was given custody of his two children and tirelessly advocated for his ADHD son through out the school system. He proudly attended his sons high school graduation, which his former school district said would never happen. He was the birth coach for his 17 year old daughter when she gave birth to his grandson and supported them until she graduated with honors from the local junior college. George brought other recovering people with him and was instrumental in community organization for a local skate park and community center. He has had numerous surgeries during this time, but has never wavered from his commitment to our rapidly growing recovery community. He has helped the center with numerous prevention and advocacy projects through the years, helped many individuals in recovery and is currently the treasurer of our non-profit center, in spite of his continuing health issues. Our center's success is directly attributed to the foundation that was laid by a loyal volunteer, who began as a consumer of our services.
